Bob Dylan Thoughts

I am against nature. I don't dig nature at all. I think nature is very unnatural. I think the truly natural things are dreams, which nature can't touch with decay.

All this talk about equality. The only thing people really have in common is that they are all going to die.

I don't think the human mind can comprehend the past and the future. They are both just illusions that can manipulate you into thinking there's some kind of change.

Democracy don't rule the world, You'd better get that in your head; This world is ruled by violence, But I guess that's better left unsaid.

Don't matter how much money you got, there's only two kinds of people: there's saved people and there's lost people.

I consider myself a poet first and a musician second. I live like a poet and I'll die like a poet.

Being noticed can be a burden. Jesus got himself crucified because he got himself noticed. So I disappear a lot.

People today are still living off the table scraps of the sixties. They are still being passed around - the music and the ideas.

I define nothing. Not beauty, not patriotism. I take each thing as it is, without prior rules about what it should be.
